To the Members of the Mercantile Library Association—Gentlener: A reform movement, much required in the management of the Library, has been set on tool.

During the last year the income of the Association has been ever $0.000, and not one cent has been expended for useful books, while the shelves of the Library and the reading-room have been glutted with useless and trashy literature; and when the Board of Officers at the annual meeting made their report, they tell us that unless we raise the annual dues fifty per ceat, the library cannot longer exist and be useful to the community. Upon this ground we take direct issue with the present asomices entitled "Regulars," and confidently assert that, with maticeous management, the Library can be brought back to that state of prosperity which it enjoyed in past years. As the annual report is not within the reach of the members, it is impossible for the most realize the gross unbamangement that has occurred for the last two years. If the dues are raised lifty per cent, or preserve in other sectelies has shown that we shall one more than see third of our members in one year, and out off from the junior members of the Library the priviteges heretofore enjoyed. We therefore present to you a ticket, on perusing which you will find the names of the most efficient and respectable perfellement that could be found for the positions, pleaged to conduct the Library trom its present deplocable state to prosperity and meetinged, carrying out the original tides of its founders, to do the greatest number. We therefore ead upon you, releve men before he of POSITION TO RAISING THE ANNUAL DUES.

> THE TRAPPER GUIDE. A TALE OF THE NORTH-WEST. DR. J. H. ROBINSON.

OR,

Anthor of "Buck Bison," "Pioneers of Kentucky," "Marior Brigade," "Half-Witted Nat," etc., etc.

This is a story descriptive of Wild and Starling Adventors, and of the primitive modes of life among the Indians and Trappers of the great North-Western Territory. This grand and extensive portion of the American Continent has been hitherto almost as a sealed book" to the civilized world. In those regions a territory nearly as large as Europe has long been locked in the mo nopoly of the great Hundson's Bay Company, and its rival, the North-Western Company. Private enterprise has not penetrated its solitudes, and of those whose duties have called them there and who have participated in the tressures of this unknown land none have hitherto been willing to expose its mysteries, or have possessed the power of portraying the perilous and strange vicissitudes through which they have passed. Here we find classes of men distinct, indigenous to the soil, or molded by its peculiarities; perfectly original in character, utterly unlike in nanners and habits to any similar order in other lands. The Indian, in all his natural wildness; the half-breed, a strange mix ture of daring, simplicity and cunning; the Trapper, who spurns the restrainsts of civilization, and recognizes no law but the fierce impulse of his own will; the European Exile or Outeas the Outlaw of Canada and the United States, who seek in the trackless wilderness a refuge from the outraged laws of civilized Nor isithis rude society denied the genial influences and human zingleffects of woman's presence. Impelled by affection, hunonicasts to this wild retreat; while the population, the offspring of mixed races, contains thousands of half-breed females, in whom the passions, the graces, and the virtues of the softer sex, are blended with the artleanness of nature, and the wild freedo of a life that knows no conventionalities.

In these reckless men the great rival Company as any recorded of the chivalric ages. And among them also are committed tragedies, and crimes of wild passion, that can find no parallel in history, or scarcely in fiction. Living absolutely without law, and without protection, every man is, perforce, law unto himself, and the rifle and the tomahawk are the only

Here is a glorious field for a novelist whose experience and tal eut fit him for the task of depleting its events. Such a man is the author of "NICK WHIFFLES;" and in this story we venture to say that he has surpassed every former effort. For fidelity to nature, for graphic and dramatic force of style, and for keen delineation of character, there are few stories in the language that can compare with "NICK WHIFFLES." The at before the reader, in life-like action, the bardy Adventurers and the simple Natives of this magnificent region. The crime, the wrongs, the misfortunes and the unsophisticated virtues of the life he depicts, alternately arouse our indignation and awake our sympathy. At one time we are rapt in admiration of the reckess courage and remantic daring so vividly painted by this skillful writer, at another we are melted to sears by the exquisite pathos with which some of the noblest traits of human nature are brought before us, and sgain we are convulsed with laughter by humorous descriptions of eccentric and original characters—th unique offspring of a free, lawless and nutrammeled mode of exlatence: a phase of human nature hitherto unknown for want o

Those who have read the previous productions from the pen o Dr. Robinson, do not require to be told that there is no man now living who can compete with him in a story of this character. He stands unrivalled in this class of literature. As one of the lead ing contributors for the Flag of Our Union, and other leading publications of the day, for a number of years, he has acquired to popularity that places him in the front rank of American story writers. Those who desire to secure this great Story by Dr. ROB INSON, complete, should send in their orders at once, to enable us to make arrangements to supply them. WHERE THE LADIES LOVE TO GO .-WHERE THE LADIES LOVE TO GO.—

The prettiest fashion now adopted by the ladies is the precent universal one of trimming their robes, their dressess, their mastilias, &c., with ribbon. Nothing could be more tarry nothing more staceful. There is an air of purity, of eigennee, of finishs, about habiliments thus embelliaised, that eminently befit the appearance of a beautiful woman and when the ribbons have been purchased of LICHTENSTEIN (whe may be called the Prince of New-York Ribbondom, for he monopolitics all the most perfect and fashionable ribbuns manufactured in France and
